Three more pictures (bottom three) from car

Maybe if sign was high enough and back from the intersection 50-75 feet it might work

After much review and reexamining the site I see NO WAY any signage can be installed at this intersection that would direct ANY car traffic to the downtown.

Traffic southbound on Harbor would not notice the signage where it would have to be placed. Their focus will be southbound on Harbor into the new Ports O'Call.

Traffic Northbound on Harbor cannot see the signage due to the trees in the City park.

The only clear shot at and signage would be from the museum where there will be no traffic.

If you think otherwise be sure and ACTUALLY visit the intersection before you comment.

We need to re-group!!

Sign will most likely be behind the signals.

Parking kick out on 6th just West of Harbor

Sidewalk too narrow on North side to place any substantial upright. Cantilever seems to be the best way

Trees on South side may mask any message on the upright
